7. Asexual: (6) A person who is not sexually attracted to anyone

*Teachers Note: Be sure to emphasize that using any of these terms is an individual decision, and it's not okay to label other people or to disrespect the labels people choose for themselves. Also, these definitions are meant to give students a general understanding of how many people use these terms, but there are people who use them differently, and people who use other terms, and that's okay. There are also a lot of nuances to how people use these words, which students might be interested in exploring on their own.
